More than dress and fine array-More than don.es or lofty steeples-More than station, power and sway, Make your home both neat and tasteful, Bright and pleasant, always fair, Where each heart will rest contented,

More than fashion's luring glare-More than mammon's gilded honors-More than thought can well compare, See that home is made attractive,

Flowers with all their sweet delight, Seek to make your home most levely, Let it be a smiling spot, Where, in sweet contentment resting,

Care and sorrow are forgot; Where the flowers and trees are waving Birds will sing their sweetest songs, Where the purest thoughts will linger Make your Home a little Eden, Imitate her smiling bowers, Let a neat and simple cottage Stand among bright trees and flowers There, with fragrance and with brightness, Will each blooming rose display! Here, a simple vine-clad arbor Brightens through each summer day.

There each heart will rest contented, Seldom wishing far to roam, Or, if roaming, still will cherish Mem'ries of that pleasant Home; Such a bome makes man the better, Pure and lasting its control-Home with pure and bright sorroundings Leaves its impress on the soul.

The Seducer.

She sees him as a woman always sees the man she loves—noble, greal, and good; for when did a loving woman even believe a man otherwise?-too noble, too great, too high, too good, she thinks for her-poor, trivis!, ignorant coquette-poor, childish, triffing Virginne. Has he not commanded armies?-she thinks-is he not elequent in the Senate? and yet, what interest he has taken in her, a poor, uninformed, ignorant creature-she has never 00 tried to improve herself till since she knew 00 him. And he is so considerate too-so respectful, so thoughtful and kind, so manly and honorable, and has such a tender friendship for her, such a brotherly 50 and fatherly solicitude! and yet, if she is haughty or imperious or severe, how 50 grieved he looks! How strange that she could have power over such a man! It is one of the saddest truths of this sad mystery of life, that woman is often never so much an angel as just the moment she falls into an unsounded depth of perdition. 25 And what shall we say of the man who leads her on as an experiment-who 50 amuses himself with taking woman after woman up these dazzling, delusive 00 hights, knowing, as he certainly must, where they lead? We have been told in extenuation of the course of Aaron Burr that he was not a man of gross passions, or of coarse in-50 dulgence, but, in the most consummate 50 and refined sense, a man of gallantry .-This, then, is the descriptive name which polite society has invented for the man who does this thing.

Of old, it was thought that one who dip had administered poison in the sacramental bread and wine, bad touched the very hight of impious sacrilege; but this crime is white by the side of his who poisons 50 God's eternal sacrament of love, and destrove a woman's soul through and purest affections .- Mrs. Stone in

Walking on the Water.

Mr. Hickock performed his feat of walking on the surface of the hay yesterday afternoon, in the presence of nearly, four hundred spectators. The performance took place on the north side of the Island, a short distance from Moodie's wharf,-Shortly after 4 o'clock Mr. Hickock left the shore in a boat and donned his "boots" in about seven or eight feet of water. By dip means of a long pole he steadled himself for a mement, and then walked off with a brisk bo step. After walking a few rods, followed by a large number of boats, he turned briskly round, and walked back to the place where the bulk of the spectators were standing .-Although his boots have rather a clumsy and unwieldy-like appearance, Mr. Hickock appeared to move about with great facility, and in whatever direction he wished. After marching upon the water for half an hour, Mr. Hickock approached the land and explained the theory of his invention. He also stated that in a short time he expected to appear in another pair of " boots,' he would leap into the middle of the bay and walk about where he pleased .- Toronto

How the Empress Looken.-In describ-1 00 ing the great fete of the entry of the Em-Awarding peror and the Army into Paris, the correspondent of the London Star says the Em-Framed Diploma peror still looks well on horse-back, and diploma thus speaks of the aspect of the Empress: 50 Never was beauty beheld to greater addip rantage than on this occasion. Attired in white, enveloped in clouds of rich lace, through which her soft complexion was fra. dip softened even more, she appeared the most perfect realization of imperial grace and 2 00 dignity which has ever been beheld. The 2 00 taste displayed by her costume was also a 1 00 matter of admiration. No fantastical bon-00 net concealed her features from the ad-1 00 miring crowd; a long weil of Brussels point was thrown over head, and the forehead encircled with the imperial diadem-50 the great Sanel diamond, which flashed 50 and sparkled in the sun with the rarest 50 brilliancy.

25 The time is soon coming when by the 00 common consent of mankind it will be es-50 teemed more honorable to have been John Pounds, putting new and beautiful souls Best sausage filler, Hall & Freeman, fra dip into the ragged children of the neighbor-50 bood, while he mended their father's shoes, than to have sat upon the British throne. T Shaw Dip The time now is, when if Queen Victoria, in dip one of her magnificent progresses through her realm, were to meet that more than American queen, Miss Dix, in her "circumdip navigation of charity" among the insane, dip the former should kneel and kiss the hand of the latter, and the ruler over more than a hundred millions of people should pay 50 homage to the angel whom God has sent to 50 the maniac .- Horace Mann.
